

It has come to my attention that the FCC is planning on expanding Low Power FM (LPFM) station service in a way, which would allow these (LPFM) stations to take priority over current FM translators broadcasting national networks such as K-LOVE radio. I would be very unhappy if you were to allow this take place and I am against it.

K-LOVE radio provides a wonderful service to all residents of the Oklahoma City community. I depend on them to provide me with Christian news and entertainment that only K-love can provide. K-LOVE supports wholesome values and has a positive and encouraging impact on the locals community. My life and the local community would be negatively impacted if K-LOVE were forced to stop broadcasting as thousands of people in this community depend on K-LOVE to provide commercial free Christian news and entertainment. These stations provide calming and soothing music which increases my ability to deal with the daily stress inherent in the community in which I live, this calming influence is definitely in the public interest since it keeps people on a more even keel through out the day. Additionally this station is a family friendly station that my kids can listen to without the fear of them being exposed to inappropriate adult humor and language. Thanks for allowing me to express my opinion and once again I am against this change of the rules.
